From morphosyntax to phonological realization

The course will focus on the mapping from morphosyntactic features to the input to phonology for realizational models like Distributed Morphology. We will quickly review the postsyntactic mechanisms that have been proposed, and will concentrate on the discussion of phenomena like allomorphy, of different types, and contractions.