

Joan Mascaró
Course abstract

Variation in vowel systems

Natural languages show variation in both vowel inventories and processes deriving surface vowels from their underlying form. In this course I will show how inventories are derived from constraint interaction in Optimality Theory, and how these constraints derive also the realization of underlying vowels. I will mainly examine processes of vowel reduction and stress-dependent vowel harmony.